

CAMPFIRE STORIES

DUEL OF SOUTHERN GENERALS.

Killing of Walker by Marmaduke and Its Effect on Confederate Fortunes.

"A duel between two confederate generals, almost in the midst of an important engagement, in the early stages of the civil war, had something to do with the final collapse of the southern cause," said an ex-confederate living in New York after his return from the Davis and J. E. B. Stuart memorial celebrations in Richmond, relates the New York Sun. "We were not as united as the new generation would have you believe."

"There was always a misunderstanding between the Richmond government and the trans-Mississippi department. Early in the conflict I was sent to Arkansas to learn the cause of the trouble in the leadership."

"Five men, whose names later became a part of the history of the cause, were at variance at a time when unity was essential. These men were Sterling Price, Marmaduke, Walker, Holmes and Fagan. Price was the idol of the Missouri troops. Marmaduke was a born soldier. Walker was a martinet. Holmes was uncertain in judgment. Fagan was a good fighter when he was discreetly directed."

"When I reached Arkansas these five men were before Helena for the purpose of wrestling it from the enemy. It was a strategic position at the time. It was not necessary to go into the details of the story. The point is that the attack failed."

"It was a blow to the Richmond government early in the cause. The failure lay not with the soldiers but with the leader. Holmes had planned the fight. Events showed that he had no conception of the strength of the fortifications of the enemy or of the enemy's numbers."

"After the failure disensions among the leaders increased. This was noticeably the case between Walker and Marmaduke."

"If I remember correctly Walker ranked Marmaduke. In one of the movements Walker had ordered the troops under his command to retreat. To Marmaduke was given the post of danger—covering the retreat. He was assured that at a certain point he would be reinforced by Walker."

"It was important that he should have this aid. When he arrived at influence of officials high in authority the affair was dropped, but it took time to restore the army to discipline. And when the time came the enemy had secured advantages which were maintained throughout."

"The Richmond government was charged with indifference to the situation beyond the Mississippi. It was due very largely to the lack of unity among the leaders in the west."

"By the time they had come to their senses the damage had been done. The south's defeat has been ascribed to many causes. One of them, not generally known, I have stated."

"All the participants in the Walker-Marmaduke duel are dead with the exception of Marmaduke's chief second, Col. John C. Moore. He is, or was a year ago, still living in Kansas City."

HEROINE OF CIVIL WAR.

Mrs. Elida Fowle Founded a Library with President Lincoln's Help.

A leading spirit in the celebration of Dorchester day was Mrs. Elida Fowle. Mrs. Fowle has lived in Dorchester since the civil war. She is the first woman in the United States to found a free public library, which was erected in Washington on a grant of land obtained from the government, and was known as the "Soldiers' Free Library."

Mrs. Elida Fowle, also the first woman to be married before the house of representatives, an event which was attended by hundreds of the highest dignitaries of the land who had become acquainted with both Mrs. Fowle and her husband for the deep interest they displayed in the care of the union soldiers.

At the time the civil war broke out Mrs. Fowle, who was then Elida Rumsley, was living in New York, but soon went to Washington, where she hoped to be enrolled with the army nurses under the charge of Dorothea Dix. But she was too young to obtain a regular commission and then resolved to do, as she herself says, "the next best thing."

Possessed of a beautifully sympathetic voice, she was one day traveling through one of the hospitals when someone asked for a song, and Mrs. Fowle started to sing. Her efforts were greeted with wild cheering and from that time on she believed that she had found her mission.

At all the hospitals about Washington her face and voice became familiar, and it was while engaged upon this work, when she heard the complaint that many of the soldiers spent their time in idly playing cards and telling useless stories, that she conceived the idea of founding a library for them.

With this object in view she went to President Lincoln, who promised her a site for the library, provided she could obtain the necessary sum to erect it.

Her voice was the only thing she could depend upon to raise money with so that together with Mr. Fowle she determined to give a series of concerts to raise the necessary fund for the library building.

President Lincoln allowed her the use of the Marine band at two of these concerts and within a very short time she managed to raise about $2,000.

Mrs. Fowle was only 18 years of age when this library was built, but it was soon stocked with books, which were freely given to the soldiers, who obtained them under their signature and a promise to return them.

At that time Mr. Fowle was employed in the navy department at Washington, but his tastes were very much in common with those of his fiancée, and she obtained no little support from him in all her endeavors.

Together they were members of the choir in the house of representatives and it was this circumstance that induced them to be married there.

On that occasion the floor and galleries were packed, fully 4,000 people being present. The bride was also requested to sing, "The Star Spangled Banner" immediately after the ceremony.

Australian Lyre Bird.
Of Australia's lyre bird a naturalist writes: "It imitates the notes and songs of other birds and reproduces a hissing noise similar to that uttered by an alarmed snake, and a sharp knocking sound like that produced by striking a tree trunk with a stick. All these sounds are uttered apparently for the bird's own amusement. The sounds of imitation include the calls and cries of every creature that is found in the localities where the lyre bird inhabits, including those of such noisy birds as the eagle and the laughing jackass. The lyre bird nearly always interposes snatches of its own song between its mimic cries."

As Others See Us.
A day or two ago it fell out that an actor with a purpose was cinematographed on the stage, and was vastly pleased with the result.

Said he gleefully to a prominent critic: "It was the most extraordinary experience I ever went through—actually to see myself acting."

"Now," replied the prominent dramatic critic, "you understand what we have to put up with."

He Who Will Fail.
He will certainly fail who hopes to know men deeply and only to get happiness, never to get anxiety, distress, disappointment, out of knowing them; and he has mistaken the first idea of human companionship who seeks companionships, friendships and contacts with mankind directly and simply for the pleasure they will give him.—Philips Brooks.

No woman legislator in Finland could outdo that French deputy who fainted at the description of bloodshed and had to be carried out of the chamber.

DRUMMER MEANT ALL RIGHT.

But His Act Surely Spoiled Artist's "Big Scene."

It might have happened over on States Island; anyhow, it occurred in Greater New York, and at a stock company house. The company put on an uproarious farce one week, during the course of which the leading lady made several burlesque falls. In order to accentuate the comedy the drummer in the orchestra to give the bass drum a resounding whack every time the leading lady fell to the stage. He followed instructions faithfully at every fall except one at the opening of the performance. The stage manager was furious. After the show he had a heart to heart talk with the drummer in his dressing room.

"That was the place where the 'boom' would have gotten the biggest laugh, and you let it pass!" he roared. The drummer scratched his Teutonic head. "Well, it loomed serious dere," he answered.

"No, that's burlesque," said the manager. "Now, every time you see her fall don't think anything, but just wallop that drum, see?"

"Chess," said the drummer, and at every performance thereafter the boom of the drum never failed.

The following week the bill was "Sapho." The leading lady took her part seriously and studied great effects in business for the "big scene" at the close of the third act when Jean leaves her. It would be great personal triumph, she thought, and truly her work was a triumph, and the audience thought so, too, as the play proceeded. Not one eye in the house was dry when the leading lady threw herself against the door through which Jean had just passed with his angry farewell; her form shook with sobs, and the very atmosphere was tense with emotion. Slowly she staggered from the door, then, with a great cry of agony, threw up her hands and, as the curtain descended, fell prone to the floor while a burly boom came from the bass drum.

Tears fled from the eyes of the audience, the roar of applause was stopped as it began and only laughter wild and long, went up at Sapho's agony to the accompaniment of a bass drum, while on the stage the leading lady bit a great piece out of the floor rug and hoarsely demanded to be led to that drummer that she might wallop in his gore.

Sugar Baskets at a Gay Dinner.
There are hostesses who insist on making their dinner parties a mixture of the toy shop and the conservatory, in spite of the report that a social ban has fallen on lavish displays. At a dinner in a fashionable resort last week baskets made of drawn sugar with flaring edges and long handles stood at each place. The baskets were woven from strands of variegated color and were further embellished by a sugar bow. They were filled with flowers which matched a display of blooms in the center of the table. The dinner was very, very gay, though no pet dogs were invited.

Forty-Eight Years in Prison.
The release of a prisoner of the great Indian mutiny of 1857 from the Andamans is reported by a Hindoo newspaper. Moonsama Singh was transported in 1859 for taking part in the mutiny and after 48 years in the Andamans has now been released. The veteran prisoner will have to report himself once a month before the superintendent of police.

Couldn't Blame Him.
He was trying to make the lady believe that he was accustomed to dining out and to having the best of service.

"Kindly seat us at some table," he said to the head waiter, "where we may be properly taken care of. I was not at all pleased with the waiter I had when I was here last."

"Very well, sir. I can't blame you for not wanting to be served that way again. I remember that he wanted to throw you out for offering to 'tip' him with a plugged nickel."

First Scotch Gold Coin.
The first gold coin struck for Scotland was issued in the reign of David II, 1329-71, and only three specimens are known. It was known as a noble and on the obverse is shown the king, crown on head, standing in a gallery. In his right hand is a sword and in the left a shield bearing the Scotch arms.

Unpleasant Idea.
One reason why an argument is so unpleasant is that one is often forced to believe that one might possibly be mistaken some time.

WORN TO A SKELETON.

A Wonderful Restoration Caused a Sensation in a Pennsylvania Town.

Mrs. Charles N. Preston, of Elkland, Pa., says: "Three years ago I found that my housework was becoming a burden. I tired easily, had no ambition and was falling fast. My complexion got yellow, and I lost over 50 pounds. My throat was terrible, and there was sugar in the kidney secretions."

My doctor kept me on a strict diet, but as his medicine was not helping me, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me at once, and soon all traces of sugar disappeared. I have regained my former weight and am perfectly well."

TWAS IN 'TATER TIME.
One Thing, at Least, the Mother Was Positive About.

The late Senator Platt of Connecticut enjoyed funny stories and could tell a good many himself. Notwithstanding his long public life, he always remembered a yarn that he carried from his school days.

One year when the district schools opened in his town one of the teachers, in making a record of the ages of her pupils, as required by law, found that one little girl, who came from a family not noted for being especially bright, was unable to say when her birthday came.

So in order to complete her records, the teacher walked two miles to see the girl's mother one afternoon after school. Asked if she could remember just when her daughter was born, the woman thought for some little time, and then with a sort of puzzled look, said:

"Well, the gal was born in 'tater time, that's sure, but I can't remember whether they was a-plantin' on 'em or a-diggin' on 'em."

CASE OF ECZEMA IN SOUTH.
Suffered Three Years—Hands and Eye Most Affected—Now Well and Grateful to Cuticura.

"My wife was taken badly with eczema for three years, and she employed a doctor with no effect at all until she employed Cuticura Soap and Ointment. One of her hands and her left eye were badly affected, and when she would stop using Cuticura Soap and Ointment the eczema came back, but very slightly, but it did her a sight of good. Then we used the entire set of Cuticura Remedies and my wife is entirely recovered. She thanks Cuticura very much and will recommend it highly in our locality and in every nook and corner of our parish. I. M. Robert, Hydrópolis, La., Jan. 5 and Sept. 1, 1906."

Tom Ochiltree's Moon.
After Tom Ochiltree, that able congressman raconteur and laugh generator for the afflicted rich, settled in New York as the amuser of the John W. Mackay family, he effervesced in a thousand different directions, and was as good in some ways as Sam Ward. One night he escorted John Mackay's friend, the Count de Biscuit, down to the Battery to show the sight of New York. The moon was grand, and the count went into raptures as "her maiden reflection rippled over the pearly waters." He cried: "Eet iss grand! Eet iss grand! Dair iss no such moon in all Italy!" "Count," said Ochiltree, solemnly, as befitting the occasion, "you just ought to see the moon in Texas!"

Edward F. Gilpatrick, an ossified man, has made all arrangements for the gift of his body to death to the Harvard Medical school for dissection, study and research. He fears he may not live long. He was stricken at 30 years and was found in a poorhouse near Portland. He gives his body without expense.

Aids Mohammedan Government.
A Mohammedan army schoolmaster has addressed a loyal appeal to the native army in India pointing out that as soon as common sense is exercised the accusations against the Indian government fall to the ground.

Had a Cheer Coming.
Years ago, when the G. A. R. annual department encampment was held in Boston, as the veterans were marching along one of the avenues a lady, who had secured an elevated position on a wagon in a side street, became conspicuous by the enthusiasm she displayed, and was dissatisfied with the lack of it in the by-standers. "Cheer!" said she. "Why don't you cheer? I guess you'd cheer if you'd lost two husbands in the war as I did."—Life.
